Glossary Revisions-Traditional Cultural Practitioner

It is a person who lives culturally traditional ways, as in using water in a cleansing ceremony, in burial, in prayer, in life, in survival. The water must be clean for gathering materials to be safe to eat, weave, and for the medicinals and botanicals which are used by many traditional Native “Practitioners.” A person may or may not be a healer or a medicine man or woman to be a traditional cultural practitioner. It should be noted that the term “practitioner” is in many ways a misnomer as it refers to a person who actively participates in traditional and culturally relevant Native American lifeways.
